Vegetable oil is a generic term for any oil derived from plants, such as corn, soybean, or canola oil.

These oils are often highly refined and processed, which means they lose some of their beneficial nutrients and antioxidants.

They also tend to have a high ratio of omega-6 fatty acids to omega-3 fatty acids, which can cause inflammation in the body.

REFILL IT

Extra-virgin olive oil, on the other hand, is made from cold-pressed olives, which means it retains more of its natural antioxidants and phytochemicals.

It also has a more balanced ratio of omega-6 to omega-3 fatty acids, which can help reduce inflammation and lower the risk of heart disease and stroke.

Therefore, extra-virgin olive oil is a healthier choice than vegetable oil for cooking and dressing salads.

Sour cream is a dairy product that is made by fermenting cream with bacteria.

It has a tangy flavor and a creamy texture, but it also has a lot of calories and fat, especially saturated fat, which can raise your cholesterol levels and increase your risk of heart disease.

REFILL IT

Whole-milk plain Greek yogurt is also a dairy product that is made by straining regular yogurt to remove some of the whey (liquid). It has a similar flavor and texture to sour cream, but it has less calories and fat, and more protein and calcium.

Protein and calcium are important for building and maintaining muscle and bone mass, especially after bariatric surgery.

Therefore, whole-milk plain Greek yogurt is a healthier choice than sour cream for topping baked potatoes, tacos, or soups.

Processed cheese products are made by melting and blending natural cheeses with emulsifiers, preservatives, colorings, and flavorings.

They have a smooth and uniform texture, but they also have a lot of sodium, sugar, and artificial ingredients, which can increase your blood pressure, blood sugar, and exposure to chemicals.

REFILL IT

Natural cheeses are made by curdling milk with rennet (an enzyme) or acid, and then draining and aging the curds.

They have a more varied and complex texture and flavor, but they also have more protein, calcium, and probiotics (beneficial bacteria), which can help your digestion, immunity, and bone health.

Therefore, natural cheeses are a healthier choice than processed cheese products for snacking or adding to sandwiches or salads.

HEALTHY FOODS

White bread is made from refined wheat flour, which has been stripped of its bran and germ, the parts that contain most of the fiber, vitamins, and minerals.

White bread also has added sugar and preservatives, which can increase your blood sugar and calorie intake.

REFILL IT

100 percent whole-wheat bread is made from whole wheat flour, which contains all the parts of the wheat kernel.

It has more fiber, vitamins, and minerals than white bread, and less sugar and preservatives.

DISCARD IT

White rice is made from polished rice grains, which have been milled to remove the outer bran layer and the inner germ layer.

This process makes white rice softer and quicker to cook, but it also removes most of the fiber, vitamins, and minerals. White rice also has a high glycemic index, which means it raises your blood sugar quickly and can cause hunger and cravings.

REFILL IT

Brown rice is made from whole rice grains, which have only the outer husk removed.

It has more fiber, vitamins, and minerals than white rice, and a lower glycemic index, which means it keeps your blood sugar stable and makes you feel full longer.

Therefore, brown rice is a healthier choice than white rice for adding to stir-fries, soups, or salads.

DISCARD IT

Regular pasta is made from refined wheat flour, which has the same drawbacks as white bread.

It has less fiber, vitamins, and minerals than whole-wheat flour, and more sugar and preservatives.

It also has a high glycemic index, which can spike your blood sugar and cause overeating.

REFILL IT

Whole-wheat pasta is made from whole wheat flour, which has the same benefits as 100 percent whole-wheat bread. It has more fiber, vitamins, and minerals than regular pasta, and a lower glycemic index.

It also has a more nutty and chewy texture, which can enhance the flavor of your sauces and toppings.

Therefore, whole-wheat pasta is a healthier choice than regular pasta for making spaghetti, lasagna, or macaroni and cheese.

Granola bars are often marketed as healthy snacks, but they are actually loaded with sugar, fat, and calories.

They also have very little protein and fiber, which means they won't keep you satisfied for long.

They may also contain artificial flavors, colors, and preservatives, which can harm your health.

REFILL IT

Nuts are natural snacks that are rich in protein, fiber, healthy fats, and antioxidants.

They can help you curb your appetite, lower your cholesterol levels.

Soda is a carbonated beverage that is high in sugar, calories, and caffeine.

It has no nutritional value and can harm your teeth, bones, and kidneys.

It can also increase your risk of diabetes, obesity, and heart disease.

REFILL IT

Water is a natural beverage that is essential for life. It has no calories and can hydrate your body, flush out toxins, and improve your skin, hair, and mood.

It can also help you control your appetite and weight. Therefore, water is a healthier choice than soda for quenching your thirst and staying healthy.

You can add some lemon, cucumber, mint, or berries to your water to make it more flavorful and refreshing.

Potato chips and pretzels are crunchy snacks that are high in calories, fat, salt, and refined carbohydrates.

They have very little nutritional value and can increase your blood pressure, weight, and risk of diabetes.

REFILL IT

Dehydrated vegetables/snap peas and kale chips are crunchy snacks that are low in calories, fat, salt, and refined carbohydrates.

They have more fiber, vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants than potato chips and pretzels. They can help you feel full longer, lower your cholesterol levels, and protect your health.

Therefore, dehydrated vegetables /snap peas and kale chips are healthier choices than potato chips and pretzels for satisfying your crunch cravings. You can find some brands of these snacks online or in health food stores, such as Snappea Crisps or Lentil Snaps or make your own kale chips at home.

Pasta is a staple food that is made from refined wheat flour, water, and sometimes eggs.

It has a soft and chewy texture and a neutral flavor, but it also has a lot of calories, carbohydrates, and gluten, which can cause weight gain, blood sugar spikes, and digestive issues.

It also has very little fiber, vitamins, and minerals, which are important for your health and well-being.

REFILL IT

Fresh spaghetti squash and spiralized zucchini are vegetables that can be used as pasta substitutes.

They have a similar shape and texture to pasta, but they have much fewer calories, carbohydrates, and gluten. They also have more fiber, vitamins, and minerals than pasta, which can help you feel full longer, lower your cholesterol levels, and boost your immune system.

Therefore, fresh spaghetti squash and spiralized zucchini are healthier choices than pasta for making dishes like spaghetti bolognese, lasagna, or macaroni and cheese. You can find fresh spaghetti squash and spiralized zucchini in some grocery stores or make your own at home with a knife or a spiralizer.

HEALTHY FOODS

Creamy processed salad dressings are sauces that are used to add flavor and moisture to salads.

They have a thick and smooth texture and a rich flavor, but they also have a lot of fat, calories, sugar, and artificial ingredients, which can increase your calorie intake, weight, and exposure to chemicals.

They also have very little nutritional value and can mask the natural flavors of the salad ingredients.

REFILL IT

Flavored vinegars and olive oil have a thin and light texture and a tangy flavor, but they also have less fat, calories, sugar, and artificial ingredients than creamy processed salad dressings. They also have more antioxidants and healthy fats than creamy processed salad dressings, which can protect your heart and lower your inflammation.

They also have more nutritional value and can enhance the natural flavors of the salad ingredients. Therefore, flavored vinegars and olive oil are healthier choices than creamy processed salad dressings for adding flavor and moisture to salads. You can find flavored vinegars and olive oil in some grocery stores or make your own at home with vinegar, herbs, spices, fruits, or honey.
